Avoiding Enforcement Actions

Tracking offsite, one of the biggest complaints about a construction site, is a way to attract unwanted regulatory scrutiny. Keeping the construction entrance stabilized and clean is an ongoing effort that pays off by giving an impression of good housekeeping on a site.

Based on audits of hundreds of construction sites across the country, here are the regulatory

“hot buttons”:

1. Inadequate documentation
2. Inadequate combination of erosion and sediment control measures
3. Tracking offsite
4. Trash and debris onsite
5. Poorly managed washouts (concrete, paint and stucco)
6. Poorly placed and managed sanitary facilities (Porta-Johns)
7. Inadequate BMP maintenance

Inadequate documentation includes the SWPPP or ESCP not current inspections, repairs and training not documented.
